The Barth Lectures

Sometimes a book can be pure reading pleasure. Every once in a while a great book is pure listening pleasure. This is the experience of listening to a master like Gunton in The Barth Lectures. For example, in the first chapter Gunton says: Not everyone buys into Barth. I don't, all the way along the line, as I get older I get more and more dissatisfied with the details of his working out of ...

The Barth Lectures is a concise and very readable introduction to the theology of Karl Barth by one of the foremost English theologians of the twentieth century. The transcriptions, which include solecisms characteristic of off-the-cuff ruminations, come across as charming rather than annoying and are able to bring Barth's lofty ideas down with clear descriptions.

While he fruitfully enjoyed a life-long engagement with and formation by Karl Barth's work, produced numerous articles on various aspects of such, and lectured on Barth most years he taught at...

Colin Gunton's 'The Barth Lectures': A Review

The lectures, of course, were well prepared, replete with handouts and diagrams, but what you hear is not only Gunton's take on Barth but also his taking on Barth even as he speaks. That is, we not only get theology, we actually get theolog ising – Barth “is a great man to learn to think theologically with” – as Gunton probes on his feet, sometimes with touching tentativeness.

Faith and Theology: Colin Gunton: The Barth Lectures

The current book under review is in fact a compilation of Gunton's lectures from his course cycle on Barth's theology offered at King's College and transcribed and edited by P. H. Brazier from tape recordings of the lectures. These lectures were to be the basis for Gunton's book on Barth's thought.

"Having Barth's earliest lectures on dogmatics available after all these years is like finding buried treasure in one's backyard! What Barth has to say about theology, and especially about preaching, is so fresh and pertinent that I found it hard to put the book down.

The Gottingen Dogmatics - Karl Barth : Eerdmans

Barth presents a series of twenty lectures divided into two sections. The first is concerned with Reformed teaching on the knowledge of God, and the second on the Reformed teachings on the service of God. While the primary intention of Lord Gifford was for the lectures to be delivered on the subject of natural theology, Barth presents a sermon on Reformed theology as it stands in direct ...

Karl Barth was born in Basel, Germany, on 10 May 1886. His father, theologian Fritz Barth, took the family to Berne in 1889 when he took up the university chair as Professor of Church History and New Testament Exegesis. Fritz's position and interests meant that Karl was exposed to theological enquiry from an early age.
